| Titles of any Thesis/Culminative projects | The concept of reference work is often traced to Samuel S. Green's 1876 paper on "Personal Relations between Librarians and Readers." However, reference librarianship has changed substantially over the past 130 years; the speed of change seems to have increased in recent decades with the advent and use of new technologies in reference. Reviewing the literature, identify and describe 3 major changes that have affected library reference work in the past 20 years. What is at the root of these changes, and why do you believe them to be significant? Does the literature also point to qualities of reference librarianship that have remained constant (and if so - what are they)? Or has the landscape been altered so dramatically that S.S. Green would not recognize today's reference librarian as a colleague? Style Manual Used: Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (5th ed.). (2001). Washington, DC: American Psychological Association. |
